"Do you support the idea that for a modern man Art is an important part of his life?"

Art ... What is it? What does man as a being think of such a thing as Art? Why, in general, did anyone ever invent it? Why did ancient people paint patterns on cave walls? Why did the Greek "masters of the pen" write their masterpieces? Why did medieval Artists create immortal paintings and composers write eternal music? What power guided them?

As we can see, Art exists as long as humanity exists. They were convinced that Art plays an important role in a person's life: it elevates, touches the heart, teaches to appreciate beauty ... The world of Art helps a person to express himself, to share his thoughts.

Each of us is constantly dealing with works of Art: we read Art books, look at paintings, listen to music ... Unfortunately, nowadays people do not always understand what an important role Art plays in our lives.

In our difficult times, people have plunged headlong into the whirlpool of everyday worries, forgetting about Art. Man works, trying to do everything to satisfy himself and his family with material goods. But what about the spiritual essence of man? After all, it cannot be forgotten! How to fill up your inner world with goodness, justice, mercy? I think that Art itself can help us in this. No work of Art, if it really is, will glorify evil or untruth, but will teach us good, nurture positive human qualities in us, and promote spiritual development and growth. And I like humorous works of Art. I remember how Giuseppe Archimboldo's The Gardener made me laugh. This Italian Artist surprised me for a reason! He created ironic portraits based on a combination of various vegetables, fruits and objects. And if you look closely at the portrait of the gardener, you can feel his character. And if you turn the illustration down - you see a completely different picture: vegetables placed in a bowl for cooking. So realistic and completely without humor. This is real Art! Artists always knew how to joke and talk about serious things with mild humor or poignant irony. They are Artists!

Art is a gift that everyone is endowed with. Each of us is an Artist. Our task is to find that spark in ourselves, to light a big fire from it and to warm people with the flame of goodness and joy, endowing them with positive energy.

Art lives as long as man lives, but man also lives thanks to Art. Art is in the soul of every person, just someone has more of it, and someone - less. So Art is eternal, as is the world itself!
